

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

LOCAL TYPOGRAPHY.

WHEN we consider the distance which once virtually separated the provinces from London, it will appear likely that many strange pieces by well-known hands, many curious editions, and much evidence respecting local interests, remain to be discovered. As soon as the materials throughout the country shall have become sufficient, the general enquirer, (perhaps another Buckle,) will be able to pick out facts and draw conclusions as to the current of thought, wealth, and enterprise, through the country: from the fluctuations in quality, quantity, and kind of subject matter; from the epoch and duration of provincial discussions, from the parties to them, and the grounds they adopted; from comparison of the dates of local printing, from the style of typography, from reprints, and the connections between Town and Country booksellers. In this general enquiry, antiquarians must provide for the historian by gathering local evidence ; hence the following Collections.

This tract contains an experimental catalogue of books, pamphlets, and single sheets, printed and published in Nottingham only ; I hope to be able to give at some future time a similar list for the other towns in the County, as well as an account of the newspapers.

My acknowledgements are due to the late Mr. Thomas Bateman, F.S.A., and to Messrs. Llewellynn Jewitt, F.S.A., R. Preston and H. Jackson.

Any note, addition, correction, or suggestion—also offers of sale, exchange, or loan—will be received with thanks.

The vols. merely published in Nottingham are marked thus *.

The Validity of Baptism Administered by Dissenting Ministers. &c. By a Presbyterian of the Church of Christ. Nottingham: Printed by John Collyer, &c. 1713. (pp. 22.)

By Ferdinando Shaw; see pages 10, 11, 12, and 14.

This and the cognate local tracts originated from the general Sacramental controversy then debated. Lathbury in his History of the Nonjurors, page 381, speaking of Roger Lawrence, the nonjuring bishop, says, "The name of Lawrence is well known from his learned works on the Invalidity of Lay Baptism: but probably it is not so generally known, that he was a Nonjuror. His parents being Dissenters, Lawrence was baptized in the body to which they belonged. Entertaining doubts respecting the validity of the Act, he was led to an extended examination of the whole subject, which issued in the publication of his valuable and learned work: Lay Baptism Invalid. The book was assailed by Dissenters, because the author had reduced their ministers to mere laymen, which was most distasteful to the body: it was also attacked by some members of the Church of England. He fully, as I conceive, establishes the position, that Lay Baptism is not recognised by the Anglican Church, whatever may be the decisions of the ecclesiastical courts respecting the right, which Dissenters have to the performance of the Burial Service, in the case of those who are baptized by their own ministers. Two Sermons were preached at Salisbury, by Burnet, in 1710, in which Lawrence's positions were assailed. This circumstance led him to publish, in reply, his work on the Sacerdotal Powers. A few years later there appeared another volume on Dissenters' Baptisms. The Bishop of Oxford also having alluded to the subject in his Charge, Lawrence sent forth a reply to his Lordship. These are, I believe, all the works of this learned writer, respecting whose talents there can be no difference of opinion, whatever may be the case concerning his views.

On the question of Lay Baptism, most churchmen will agree with him in sentiment. Little is known of Lawrence beyond what is to be gleaned from his works, and the replies which they called forth." See also the accompanying notes for titles of books, &c.; also Nichois's Lit. An., 2nd ed., Vol. I. page 411, note; and Index, sub voce 'Baptism.' Waterland, under 'Lay-Baptism' and 'Laurence,' Bp. Fleetwood, Abp. Bramhall, and Charles Lesley, treat of the subject.

Apparently Ayscough had the Orthodox, and Collyer the Dissenting, interest.

Mr. Cantrell in 1716 published a work on the same subject:—
“The Royal Martyr a true Christian; or, a Confutation of a late Assertion, viz. that King Charles I. had only the Lay-Baptism of a Presbyterian Teacher; with an Account of the Government of the Church of Scotland since the Reformation, shewing that Presbytery is an Innovation in that Kingdom. To which is added a particular Relation of the Solemnity of King Charles I. his Baptism, from the Heralds-office at Edinburg. By Henry Cantrell, M.A. Vicar of St. Alkmund's, Derby.” Nichols's Lit. An., 2nd ed., I. 119. The subjoined note informs us that “Mr. Cantrell procured the perpetual curacy of St. Alkmund to be created into a Vicarage in 1712; when he was regularly presented to it by the Mayor and Aldermen of Derby. He was living there in 1760; in which year (at the request of Thomas Bainbrigge, Esq. high sheriff of Derbyshire) he preached (but, I believe, did not print) an Assize Sermon. I have several of his original letters to the late Dr. Pegge; from one of which a curious anecdote relative to the civil war in 1644 is given in the History of Leicestershire, vol. III. p. 737.”

This note fixes the date of the Vindication at about Aug. 1, on which day Queen Ann died, to the great joy of the Dissenters.

Ayscough in Bridlesmithgate, and Timothy Goodwin Bookseller, over-against St. Dunstan's Church in Fleet-street, 1714. Price One Shilling. (square octavo, pp. 64, + Index of pp. 8.)

The following quotation is from Timperley: but it will be seen that I have given the titles of eight, or rather of eleven, publications issuing from the Nottingham press during 1714, and of four printed in Nottingham in 1713. Newspapers, it is confessed, were there commenced in 1710 by Ayscough.

'The earliest known work printed in Nottingham, bears for title Inn-Play, or the Cornish-Hug Wrestler, 4to. By Sir Thomas Parkyns.* Printed by William Ayscough, on the west side of Bridlesmith-gate. Mr. Ayscough was remarkable, says Deering, in his History of Nottingham, for having first established the art of printing in that town about the year 1710. Mr. Ayscough being unfortunate in business, he retired, about 1715, to Bramcote, where he died, and was buried in St. Peter's church, in Nottingham. In the south aisle, upon a tombstone, is the following inscription: Here lye the bodies of William Ayscough, printer and bookseller of this town, and Anne his wife. She was the daughter of the Rev. Mr. Young, rector of Catwick, in the county of York. He died March 2, 1719. She died Dec. 16, 1732.

* Sir Thomas Parkyns, bart. died at Bunny, Nottinghamshire, Feb. 29, 1741. He was founder of the present noble house of Rancliffe.' (Title now extinct.)

The Rev. C. B. Norcliffe of Langton Hall informs me that Mr. William Askough and Mrs. Ann Younge were married at Catwick, 11 April, 1709. He believes that her mother Elizabeth, was a Wilford of Co. Kent, grand-daughter of Sir Thomas Wilford by Elizabeth daughter of Isaac Bargrave, Dean of Canterbury. He writes, 'Who Ayscough was I cannot say;' Thoroton shews that there was previously a family of that name connected with Nuthall near Nottm.

Monk's Life of Bentley, Vol. I., page 8. "Among the students of the same year with Bentley, I find some names of no small celebrity : Samuel Garth . . . ; John Dennis . . . ; Richard Johnson, of the same college as Bentley, was also his contemporary ; and I conjecture him to be the person afterwards master of Nottingham School, and author of Grammatical Commentaries, Noctes Nottinghamicæ, and Aristarchus Anti-Bentleianus. This identity, which there seems little reason to doubt, may help to account for the personal rancour displayed against Bentley in the latter production ; which is inexplicable but upon the supposition of some previous intercourse. Johnson's spleen might have been the offspring of a feud begun at the University, or of mortification at the neglect of old acquaintance by his more fortunate fellow-collegian." The note appended reads as follows:—"Johnson in his 'Grammatical Commentaries,' styles himself M.A., and Mr. Gilbert Wakefield, who gives some account of him in the Memoirs of his own life, says, that 'he could not find out which University had the honour of his education.' Bentley's contemporary, Richard Johnson, is the only graduate of the name, either at Oxford or Cambridge, who could be the Nottingham schoolmaster. He proceeded indeed no further than his degree of B.A. But there have been many instances of persons who, having only taken that first degree, afterwards intimated their academical education by assuming the title of M.A. to which they had no claim ; probably from a dislike of the juvenile notion connected with the term 'Bachelor of Arts.'"

See also Monk, ii. 3, ii. 6., for Johnson's 'burlesque criticism' from the Aristarchus p. 109. ii. 7 ; "Johnson did not very long survive his exhibition in the character of Aristarchus : he was overtaken by some mental malady which proved the precursor of his melancholy fate. Little more is known respecting him, but that in the year 1720 he drowned himself in the meadows adjacent to Nottingham." (G. W., I. 28, ed. 1804) In 1721, as shewn below.

Monk, i. 5. Bentley's tutor was the Rev. Joseph Johnston ; in the note,—"Bentley's tutor, when he took his degree of B.A. in 1664, spelled his name Johnson. The reader of these memoirs will perhaps be struck with the coincidence which associates so many persons of the name of Johnson with Bentley's history."

"In 1682 Bentley bade adieu to Spalding (where he was succeeded by Mr. Walter Johnson)."

In ii. 59, mention is made of 'Dr. James Johnson of Trinity Hall, a warm partizan of Bentley.'

Probably the link between Bentley and Richard Johnson may be found at Spalding, with which a numerous and learned family of the latter name was connected. See Nichols's Lit. An., under 'Johnson.'

Johnson and the Trustees once went to law, I believe on the question of his ejection for incompetency, and on the trial the opposing counsel said of the schoolmaster that much learning had made him mad; the natural retort was ready, that however mad Mr. Abney might shew himself, no one could be got to think that the infliction in his case had proceeded from study. Johnson proved his competency and won his case by producing in court a certificate of ability to teach, which he had obtained from the trustees under pretence of applying for another appointment. Mr. Nelson of Great Limber, in conversation with me, lately attached the latter part of the story to Parson Leeke, vicar of Fulstow near Louth, 40 years ago a noted clerical dealer in piebald horses and ponies, who similarly outwitted his parishioners at the Bishop's visitation at Caistor.

Poor Johnson was found drowned, and the register of his burial at St. Nicholas's, Nottm., reads, '1721. M^r Richard Johnson Clerk (Author of y^e Gramat. Coment) bur^d Oct. 26.'

Barker of Thetford has marked my copy as 'circa 1720;' I have placed it in the previous year, as William Ayscough died March 2, 1719, N.S.

Johnson was Master of the Nottm. Grammar School from 1707 to 1718, and the above is probably a parody on his Noctes Nottinghamicæ, by Bentley, Leedes, Parkyns, or Samuel Jebb, in revenge for the attack on Bentley in the Aristarchus; compare John Wild's title-page with Bp. Monk's belief that Johnson had been Bentley's youthful contemporary at St. John's College, Cambridge.

“In country parishes, where the people have not the aid of an instrument to guide them, such young men and women as nature has endowed with an ear and a tolerable voice, are induced to learn to sing by book, as they call it; and in this they are generally assisted by some poor ignorant man, whom the poring over Ravenscroft and Playford has made to believe, that he is as able a proficient in psalmody as either of those authors. Such men as these assume the title of singing masters and lovers of divine music, and are the authors of those collections which are extant in the world, and are distinguished by the titles of—“David’s Harp new strung and tuned,” “The Harmony of Zion,” “The Psalm-singer’s Companion,”—and others of the like kind, to an incredible number.” Sir John Hawkins’s History of Music, (Novello,) Vol II, page 695.

* THE TRUE NARRATIVE OF THE CASE OF JOSEPH RAWSON, Who was Excommunicated by the Congregation of PROTESTANT DISSENTERS, meeting at Castle-Gate, Nottingham; Signed by the PASTORS and other OFFICE-BEARERS of that CHURCH. Together with A Prefatory Discourse, and a Plea for the Right of Religious Societies to excommunicate Heretical and Unruly Members. By JAMES SLOSS, M.A. LONDON: Printed by H. Cruden, under the Royal Exchange; and Thomas Collyer, Bookseller in Nottingham. (Price One Shilling.) [Oct., title of 1 page; + 70 pp.] No date, 1737 or 1738.

This 'True Narrative' was preceded in 1737, by 'A Narrative of Mr. Joseph Rawson's Case, &c. . . . with a Prefatory Discourse in Defence of the Common Rights of Christians,' (the Pref. Disc. was by John Taylor, of Norwich), printed in London; also preceded, as appears by the Advertisement at the end of the 'True Narrative,' by 'An Address to Protestant Dissenters: &c. By a Protestant Dissenter (viz. Bourn). . . . London 1736.' This last was answered by Sloss's Vindication, which came after the 'True Narrative.'

Joseph Rawson was excommunicated July 9, 1736. The following extract is from McAll's Historical Notices:—'In 1733, Mr. James Sloss, M.A., was appointed Mr. Bateson's co-pastor. Mr. Sloss was a minister of the church of Scotland, and (as such) a Presbyterian; but it was stipulated on his becoming pastor, that he should not attempt any alteration in the mode of church-government. He was very highly respected for his learning and ability. Several published works attested his diligence; and among them, one of great value on the doctrine of the Trinity. Mr. S. held the pastoral office at Castle Gate for nearly forty years. Very shortly after his resignation, he died suddenly, on or about the first of May, 1772. The newspapers of that day record his name in terms of high respect, and intimate that his death was a loss to the poor and needy of every persuasion ;' page 84. 'The principal occurrence which marked the joint ministry of Mr. Bateson and Mr. Sloss, was the exclusion of one of the most prominent members of the church for Arianism—a circumstance which occasioned numerous pamphlets, and a protracted controversy, spreading beyond the neighbourhood to parties at a distance. The first notice of this affair in the Church Book reads as follows:— " May 25, 1736. Some time was spent in prayer and humiliation, to ask direction of God how to proceed about Mr. Joseph Rawson, a member with us, who was suspected of having imbibed the Arian notion, and denying the supreme Deity of Jesus Christ ;" ' page 85. 'It has also been noticed, that the first enlargement of Castle Gate Meeting, was occasioned by an influx of persons from the previously orthodox Presbyterian Congregation. This occurred in 1738 ;' page 99.

Apropos of the general controversy, reference may be made to The Scholar Armed, Wardlaw's Socinian Controversy, Waterland by Van Mildert, and Dr. Pye Smith.

AN ESSAY ON CHRIST'S Fear of Death: OR, AN APPEAL to the EQUITY AND Common SENSE of MANKIND, From the Judgment of the Independent CHURCH AT NOTTINGHAM. NUTT, at the Royal-Exchange; and A. DOD, at the Peacock without Temple-Bar; and Sold by ANNE AYS COUGH in Nottingham; and J. ROE in Derby. 1737. [Price Six-Pence] (octavo, 40 pp.)

The preface, of 10 pp., is by a friend of the Author, and takes the side of Rawson.

This Essay is in fact a Sermon, preached at Castle-Gate at the solicitation of Mr. Floyd who was Assistant to Mr. Bateson 1730-3.

* A FURTHER DEFENCE OF THE COMMON RIGHTS OF CHRISTIANS, And of the SUFFICIENCY and PERFECTION of SCRIPTURE, without the Aid of Human Schemes, Creeds, Confessions, &c. Occasioned by Mr. SLOSS's pretended True Narrative of the Case of Joseph Rawson, who was excommunicated by the Congregation of PROTESTANT DISSENTERS, meeting in Castle-gate, Nottingham. By JOHN TAYLOR, Minister of the Gospel at Norwich, and late of Kirkstead, in Lincolnshire; Author of The Prefatory Discourse to Rawson's Narrative. Prov. XXX. 5, 6. Every Word of God is pure: He is a Shield unto them that put their Trust in him. Add thou not to his Words lest he reprove thee. LONDON: Printed for RICHARD HETT, at the Bible and Crown in the Poultry; and sold by W. WARD and J. COLLYER, in Nottingham, and J. ROE, in Derby. 1738. (oct., 79 pp., + 1 of advertisements.)

The Things that make for Peace and Edification amongst Christians RECOMMENDED IN A SERMON Preached at an ASSEMBLY OF MINISTERS At the High-Pavement in NOTTINGHAM June 28, 1738. And published at their unanimous Request By J. CLEGG, V.D.M. M.D. NOTTINGHAM: Printed by Tho. Collyer, and sold by J. ROE in Derby, S. SIMMONS in Sheffield, and J. SLATER in Chesterfield. (Price 6d.) M DCC XXXVIII. [Oct., 42 pp.; on Rom. XIV. 19.]

I quote two passages, one from p. 29, as shewing his views; 'Had one of our Champions for Orthodoxy been in his Place, he would have assum'd another Air, and have dictated in a loftier Tone. But St. Paul knew better; he knew the World and human Nature too well to do that; he knew the People he dealt with, could not bear the assuming Air of Superiority; he knew that reasonable Creatures should be reasonably treated, and that gentle Methods would better open their Minds to Conviction, and sooner find the way to their Hearts. And this all Ministers and private Christians, that have to do with such as they think mistaken, will find too, if they can but bear with them, treat them kindly, and use gentle Means and rational Methods for their Conviction.' At page 34 he says, 'I remember with Pleasure, how my Heart has been affected by reading some Papers deliver'd at Conferences in this Town, by that serious and excellent Christian Mr. Joseph Barret, and others.'

Watt mentions also a Sermon on Matt. XVI. 18, 1731, 8vo.; Funeral Sermon, 1736.

This is a cheap reprint. The illustrations are copied and altered from those of 1678, and from those of the 31st edition, printed by A. W. for W. Johnston, London, 1764. Among the errata pointed out to me by Geo. Offor, Esq. are, on the title page, 'The Manner of his Setting out,' and 'Desired Journey;' page 83, line 28, 'the brute,' is altered to, 'the brewer;' page 223, an answer and question are omitted, and in Joseph's reply, 'state of captivity' is printed instead of 'State of Captivity and Misery;' on page 261 is a duplicate line, 'there is that maketh himself rich, yet hath nothing;' at page 300, line 14, the reading is that of Johnston's ed., second part, page 168, with the addition of the word 'now.' 'Then the pilgrims got up, and walked to and fro; but how were their eyes now filled with celestial visions! In this land, &c.'

The following descendants of Bunyan were made burgesses of Nottingham at about the date of the above;—George Bunyan, 1752; W^m Bunyan, Lieut^t in the Navy, 1767; Tho^s Bunyan, hosier, 1776. Of this and of the family at Lincoln I have pedigrees, &c.

CRESWELL, and G. BURBAGE; also sold by Mr. WARD, and Mr. HEATH, Booksellers in Nottingham. 1774. (oct., 72 pp. + errata 2 pp.)

Sedley and Howe were elected.

Samuel Creswell was a tory, (as befitted a grandson of Thomas Hawksley, the Jacobite) and contested the question of the Junior Council against the Whig Corporation; he died Frid. Aug. 25, 1786, from a cold caught on an electioneering expedition to Bestwood Hall. After his death Burbage attempted to deprive his widow of her interest in the Journal. S. C. was the father of Edward Creswell, Vicar of Radford and Lenton, 1803-1840, whose son, Samuel Creswell, is the present Vicar of Radford; also brother of Mrs. Catherine Upton, authoress of Miscellaneous pieces in Prose and Verse, London, 1784, 4to. She accompanied her husband, Lieut. John Upton, of the 72nd or Manchester Regiment, to Gibraltar, and was present at the great siege, on which subject she wrote a poem entitled The Siege of Gibraltar. I have in my possession Lord Heathfield's testimonial to Upton.

Burbage is represented by general tradition as extremely close, not to say worse, in money matters. His dress was after the old fashion and rather imposing, his manners very polite; and the story goes that success once attended a bet, that he would pompously and with many words thank a little girl sent to get from him two halfpence in exchange for a penny.

The Gamut or Scale of Musick. Nottingham Printed & sold by I. Heath Next Door to the Boot & Shoe in the Market Place Bookseller Binder & Stationer. (Single sheet, no date.)

'1789. Jan. 1. Died, Mr. Heath, some years a bookseller in Nottingham. He had been at the Methodist meeting the last night of the year, where he staid till past twelve. On his return home he found Mrs. Heath in bed, and after informing her that the clock had struck twelve, and wishing her many happy new years, he fell back upon the floor and died without a groan.'

The late Mr. Jonathan Dunn bought his business of the executors of Mr. Wilson; who had it from Heath's widow. The purchase was subject to an annuity to Mrs. Heath, who went to reside in Cornwall, and, like most annuitants, made a very long life of it.

A NIGHT-PIECE ON DEATH. (3 pp.)

The excitement caused by the French Revolution of this year brought to light many ephemeral productions, of which I have no sufficient knowledge; about the same time the character of the purely local books declined. Hence it is thought better to defer this new class of literature to a future occasion.
